

9.1 An idealized version of WRF driven by a single sounding.

Mass, Clifford F. and Lee Picard, University of Washington

This presentation will describe an idealized version of WRF that is driven by a single sounding, but uses realistic terrain and all physics options. This new facility is then used to show the variation of the precipitation distribution over the Northwest U.S. as the flow direction is altered.